What does "BSIA" stand for?
The British Starch Industry Association (BSIA) represents and promotes the common interests of UK Starch manufacturers.

What is the drive behind BSIA?
BSIA acts on behalf of its members as a central medium of communication with UK Government, any UK trade, regulatory or enforcement bodies and other public/private bodies, and political institutions at a European level, where appropriate.

Who are the current members of the BSIA?

Cargill Helping the world thrive

SEDAMYL Naturally reliable

How often does the BSIA meet?
There are two meetings per year, plus one ad hoc issue or topic meeting per year.

How much does it cost?
Should your organisation want to join for 2022, please contact the Associations' team via geraldine.albon@fdf.org.uk for this year's subscription fees. Any joining member of BSIA will have to also become a member of the FDF too and by doing so, your organisation will have access to all the wider benefits that FDF membership would bring! Please see https://www.fdf.org.uk/fdf/about-fdf/reasons-to-join/ for further information.
